Since CPRIT’s inception, Texas has become a world-renowned destination for cancer research and prevention.

- The state’s cancer mortality rate decreased by 8% from 2011 to 2016, which equates to more than 10,500 Texans’ lives saved.
- CPRIT has funded more than 5.7 million prevention services for Texans in all 254 counties, resulting in the detection of over 3,600 cancers.
- More than 19,000 patients receive potentially lifesaving cancer treatment through CPRIT clinical trials or studies.
- The agency helped recruit 2018 Nobel Prize winner Dr. Jim Allison, a CPRIT scholar awarded for his groundbreaking work in immunotherapy.
